Greenery for Grey Nomads

Council has won a $310,000 grant from the NSW Government through a partnership between the Saving Our Species Program and the Environmental Trust to help manage vegetation buffer areas surrounding local Grey-Headed Flying-Fox camps, to reduce the human-animal conflict relating to this species.

The 'Greenery for Grey Nomads' grant will help fund works for four and a half years and Council plans to continue the program for a further two and a half years. Works will be undertaken by Council and partners from the local community including wildlife care group WIRES, NSW National Parks and Wildlife and Coffs Harbour Regional Landcare.

The nationally important areas of habitat for the threatened Grey-Headed Flying-Fox are near Barcoo Court in Toormina, Lake Road in Woolgoolga and Red Cedar Drive/Adelines Way in Coffs Harbour.

Importantly, 'Greenery for Grey Nomads' will help manage vegetation buffer areas surrounding the flying-fox camps, to reduce the human-animal conflict relating to this species.

Flying-foxes play an important role in pollination and seed dispersal and are protected in NSW under the National Parks and Wildlife Act 1974. The grey-headed flying-fox is also protected under the Biodiversity Conservation Act 2016 and the federal Environment Protection and Biodiversity Conservation Act 1999.

However, loss of feeding areas and roosting habitat means that flying-fox camps are appearing more frequently in urban centres, creating conflict with residents who are concerned about possible health issues, noise and odour.

To help minimise the effects for residents, Council undertook extensive consultation with residents and adopted the resulting Coffs Harbour LGA Flying-Fox Camps Strategic Camp Management Plan in 2017.

'Greenery for Grey Nomads' will also address other key threats to these protected mammals, as well as benefit a number of other special threatened species and ecological communities that occur in the three project areas.

Another important part of the project will involve exciting and interactive education sessions for local primary school aged children.

In addition, the project includes a robust monitoring program that will result in the conservation and other outcomes of the project to be tracked, measured and evaluated over the life of the seven-year project.
